“ I watched Zac on Intervention. I was so touched by him; so much that I wanted to check back on him to see how he was now; I saw something in his eyes that I just fell in love with and when I read this, I was heartbroken. I didn't know anything about this young man except what I saw on TV. Rest easy Zac.

“ I was blown away by the news. The last time I'd heard from him. Me and nana went to pick up Alina at a friends house. I told him about some of the stuff I'm struggling with. He told me to keep my head up. Stay away from the stuff. And we'll get through this together. To hear about him only makes me want to get through it more. I love you zac.

“ he loved every person that he met. and hated injustice.and he didn't understand why people didn't just love each other.(that is love and not judge) no matter what was going on in his life he always made people feel better with his jokes and music.he wanted to make the world a better place,and did one person at a time.the world is a better place .because he was in it.he didn't want a funeral but i think he would absolutely love the fact that it,s on 4/20 2020.his struggles in his life made him understand how important is was to love people.and so he did.he hoped his music help heal the world. so i post and share it all i can. hoping the same and if one song does this . i know he will be smiling from down from heaven on any one it helps.

“ I honestly don't know where to start, I met Zac and Caleb when I was a young looking to start a band. We spent everyday for a while playing music and trying to shed light on everyone. After that me and Zac stayed friends to this day. He lived with me a few times I used to think it was to help him out in bad times but I see more so now he stayed with me to help me and my heart out. He was a blast, not sure if you ever saw him dance, I got him to go to cowboys with me I saw him smile with the most awkward look on his face when getting forced to dance. I will always miss you brother.

“ "What moves through us is a silence, a quiet sadness, a longing for one more day, one more word, one more touch. We may not understand why you left this earth so soon, or why you left before we were ready to say good-bye, but little by little, we begin to remember not just that you died, but that you lived. And that your life gave us memories too beautiful to forget"
